Banking Department Deputy Dies at Desk

J. B. Funsten, in Charge of Merion and Counties Banks, Stricken Tuesday

NEW OFFICIAL IN CHARGE

Frank Glatfelter was installed as special deputy of the State Banking Department in charge of the affairs of the Merion Title and Trust Company and the Counties Title and Trust Company, Ardmore, Wednesday morning, following the sudden death at his desk Tuesday afternoon of J. B. Funsten, Dr. William D. Gordon's representative at the Merion Title for nearly a year.

Mr. Glatfelter also has charge of four other closed banks in the Philadelphia area. Mr. Funsten's death will not cause any delay in liquidating the affairs of Ardmore's closed banks nor in the payment of dividends, officials of the State Banking Department said.

Mr. Funsten's death, which occurred almost instantly from heart attack, took place late Tuesday afternoon when he was finishing up his work for the day at the Counties Title. He was placed in charge of the Merion Title nearly a year ago and took over the affairs of the Counties when that bank closed its doors last summer.

On July 2 of this year Mr. Funsten married Miss Frances Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Buckley, of 349 West Lancaster avenue, Haverford. Mr. and Mrs. Funsten lived at Penn avenue and Station road, Wynnewood.

Born at Front Royal, Va., in 1890, the son of the late Bishop James Bowen Funsten, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Idaho from 1900 until 1918, Mr. Funsten graduated from the University of Virginia shortly before the war and served in the Aviation Corps overseas.

At the conclusion of the war he entered the banking business and before the end of 1919 was made a National Bank Examiner, assigned to the New York district. Later he became vice-president of the National Liberties Bank of New York.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his mother, who lives in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; a sister, Mrs. Roland Child, and three brothers, Stanley R. Funsten, of Rosemont; Dr. Robert Lee Funsten, of the University of Virginia, and William Funsten, of Pasadena, Calif.

Funeral services were held yesterday morning from St. James Protestant Episcopal Church, Richmond, Va., with interment in that city.

New Officers of Legion Installed Monday Night

Newly-elected officers of the Harold D. Speakman Post, American Legion, of Narberth, were installed by Ninth District Commander Leon Walt at the Legion Room on Monday night.

They are: William H. Durbin, commander; Henry A. Frye, first vice-commander; A. Perry Redifer, Jr., second vice-commander; Clifford W. Goodwin, adjutant; John A. Mowrer, Jr., finance officer; Rev. Robert E. Keighton, chaplain, and E. O. Ensinger, sergeant-at-arms.

Commander Durbin announced that plans were going ahead for the Armistice Sunday service and for the banquet. Marios Chios, Arcadia restaurant proprietor, has been selected as caterer.

He also announced the new House Committee, consisting of Ralph S. Dunne, chairman; Walter P. Mieser and Edward Ensinger.

Annual Meeting Nov. 8
The Narberth Branch of the Needlework Guild will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, November 8, in the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church. There will be a number of interesting speakers who will be announced later.

Home Bake Tomorrow
The Epworth League of the Narberth Episcopal Church will hold a home bake sale at 207 Haverford avenue this Saturday at 8.30 A. M.

School Board Meets
The regular meeting of the Narberth School Board was held last Friday evening at the school with all members present.

Engaged

VIRGINIA BURGSTRESSER daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Burgstreser, of Chestnut avenue, Narberth, whose engagement to Señor Francisco Seco de Lucena, of Granada, Spain, was recently announced.

Burgess Speaks on History of Borough

Frye Tells of Interesting Incidents at Men's Association Meeting

BRICK ROW A HIDEOUT

How Narberth became a Borough and some incidents in its history, together with a historical sketch of the development of the Borough as a form of government was discussed by Burgess Henry A. Frye in a talk before the James C. Simpson Men's Association of the Narberth Baptist Church on Tuesday night.

Describing a borough as that place in England where self-government first developed, Mr. Frye pointed out that it became a State within a State and was responsible for the granting of rights of government from the Crown. The first borough was heard of in England in the 13th century, he said, while today, a borough in Montgomery County, Norristown, is the largest borough in the world.

The original boundaries of Narberth, the speaker said, included that section known as Anthwyn Farms. Due to the opposition of several owners of large farms, who objected to being taxed to help pay for improvements in the village, the borough limits were redrawn, leaving out that section.

In speaking of the Playground, Mr. Frye cited General W. W. Atterbury's unsolicited comment made to the late Alexander C. Shand, that "it is the finest example of civic pride and civic enterprise anywhere on the Pennsylvania System."

In the course of his talk the Burgess mentioned several things in Narberth's history which are not generally known. For example, that the Fire House was, until the setting up of three voting districts in 1924, the largest polling place in Montgomery County and possibly in the State; that the Brick Row was a hideout for criminals from Philadelphia; that the Pennsylvania Railroad was responsible for the borough being located where it is, instead of in the vicinity of Montgomery avenue and Wynnewood road, where the first settlement in this section was made since it was on the old Columbia and Philadelphia Railroad; that a hotel was erected in 1876 on the south side near the station to house 3000 Centennial guests, and that it burned down three years later; that the Narberth School House, built in 1894, cost $15,000.

At the business meeting of the Association, which followed Mr. Frye's talk, a Nominating Committee, consisting of George D. Grow, Maxwell Stoughton and Harvey C. Keim, was appointed to prepare nominations of officers for presentation at the November meeting.

Bake Sale Announced
The Finance and Budget Committee announce a Bake Sale for Saturday morning, November 5th. The proceeds will be devoted to the expenses of the P. T. A., including the radio which has been ordered for the school. The sale will be held in the store adjacent to Lang's Delicatessen on Haverford avenue.

1st Community Service Draws Big Audience

Dr. Joseph Fort Newton Delivers Remarkable Sermon at Boro Church

RAINEY NEXT SPEAKER

An audience that filled every seat and remained standing in the rear, gathered in the Narberth Baptist Church last Sunday evening to hear Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, who was the preacher at the first of this season's series of Community services. In spite of the pouring rain and chilly atmosphere, which made it the most inclement Sunday evening of the season, that service was a great success from every point of view. The music, the well-balanced program, the preaching and the attendance all combined to give it distinction and force. While the attendance was made up predominantly of those Narberth people who have flocked to community services in the past, there were, in addition, people present from Cynwyd, Merion and Wynnewood, and at the close it was like a reunion of old friends who had not seen each other in church together in a long time.

Stanley Reiff, the organist, opened the service by playing as a prelude Tchaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," the delightful, singing quality of which filled in most agreeably for those who were seated, the delay made necessary by late arrivals and the search of the ushers to find places for them. After the congregational singing of "Come Thou, Almighty King," the Rev. Robert E. Keighton, the pastor, offered an invocation and read as the Scripture lesson the parable of the Good Samaritan. The choir sang "Pierce Was the Wild Billow," by Noble, followed by the offertory, which, judging by the appearance of the plates as the ushers carried them up the aisle, was a liberal one.

Dr. Newton's sermon was unquestionably one of the most remarkable in thought, force and conviction which has ever been delivered in Narberth. No attempt will be made here to summarize it, but it is possible to indicate that it held that large audience spell-bound. People listened with wrapt attention and in complete silence. Even the habitual church-coughers were quiet. Added to the persuasiveness of Dr. Newton's thought, the clarity and beauty of the language which he selected to present some of the simplest and most fundamental principles of a religious life, was the power and the magnetism of his personality. He spoke persuasively, as has been said, but also with earnest conviction and belief and with a touch of authority.

In his introductory remarks he spoke of himself as being a near neighbor of Narberth, of his interest in this vicinity, and of the satisfaction which it gave him to go from place to place and to address a community service. Quoting from Robert Frost, "Something there is which does not love a wall," he expressed his own gratification that the walls which shut in various religious groups are crumbling and said, in beautiful

Holy Name Societies of Main Line Parishes to Meet at St. Margaret's, Narberth, Sunday

Every year, heretofore, the Holy Name Societies of individual Catholic parishes in Philadelphia and points nearby, have had a joint rally in some large auditorium. The purpose of these rallies has ever been to make a public demonstration of loyalty to Christ the King, upon whose feast day the rally will be made this year. The purpose is also to bring to the attention of everybody the general aim of the Holy Name Societies all over the world, i. e., to promote reverence for the sacred name of Christ and to make public protest against cursing, blasphemy and unclean language.

Last year Convention Hall in Philadelphia could not nearly accommodate the throngs, so next Sunday will be an innovation. There are twenty churches picked as centers, whereat the nearby parishes will meet.

The great honor of being selected as the meeting place of the Main Line

Election to be Discussed at Club Meeting Tuesday

The Women's Community Club of Narberth will hold its regular meeting in the Girl Scout wing of the Community Building on Tuesday afternoon, at 2.30. The program will be in charge of the Legislative Committee, Mrs. W. Russell Green, chairman. The topic will be the forthcoming election.

Mrs. Burns Best, chairman of the Music Department, will present Miss Leonore Cristin, who will play some of her own compositions. Leonore is a pupil in the Narberth Public School and for two years has received awards for her exceptional work at the Children's Concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Mrs. J. E. Burrill will be the hostess.

The Board of Directors will hold a meeting on Tuesday morning, November 8, at the home of the president, Mrs. Joseph A. Hongler, on Merion avenue.

Parent-Teachers to Form Study Groups

Narberth Association Opens Season Auspiciously at School

BAKE SALE IS PLANNED

Preparations are already well under way for the November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Narberth, which so auspiciously opened the 1932-33 season on October 17th. In spite of the teeming rain over a hundred were in enthusiastic attendance.

After the "White House" Invocation led by Miss Mary L. Hoover, and the salute to the flag led by Scout Robert Tyson, several of the rousing P. T. A. songs to "break the ice," were led by Miss Frances Fricke with a charm all her own.

Mrs. W. G. Briner, President, occupied the chair. She outlined in well chosen words the ideals and aims of the Narberth P. T. A. and bespoke the cooperation of the membership in making the community, the school and every home more sympathetic and helpful in the tremendously important work of training children for citizenship.

Committee reports indicated activity that insures a successful year. Mrs. S. J. McCartney, past president, announced the formation of a study group to treat with the younger children. A group for the discussion of adolescent children's problems will be under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph Perry. Since it is through the study groups that any P. T. A. develops its greatest benefit to the community at large, it is hoped that the enrollment will be large. Other groups will be formed to meet the convenience and wishes of the membership. Mrs. M. Ernest Davis, Telephone, Narberth 4136 is Chairman of all study groups and all women interested in this important phase of the work are invited to communicate their desire to enroll to Mrs. Davis.

The membership committee reported excellent progress, as did the committee on the "Child Welfare" Magazine. The program committee an-

Boys' Club Meeting is Well Attended

Edward H. Snow, Junior High Principal, Gives Talk on Sportsmanship

McINTYRE PRAISES PLAN

An inspiring talk on sportsmanship by Edward H. Snow, principal of Lower Merion Junior High School, featured the "Charter Meeting" of the Narberth Boys' Club, held in the Legion Room of the Narberth Community Building Tuesday night and attended by over 150 men and boys.

Among the other speakers were William T. McIntyre, president of the Ardmore Chamber of Commerce, who said, "if you accomplish nothing else besides keeping the boys off the street corners you will have justified your existence. More lives are wrecked on the street corners and in pool rooms than anywhere else."

Harvey Harman, Penn's football coach, made a brief talk, as did Burgess Henry A. Frye, Art Cooke, who is coaching the Boys' Club football team, and Joseph Berta, the president of the organization.

The thanks of the organization will be extended to Dr. J. J. Schombs and Dr. A. J. Denman, who have offered to provide their services for members who are injured while participating in athletic contests.

Fred Walzer presided and Horace Entenken rendered a song, with Mrs. Harold Griest as accompanist. Ice cream was provided by Mr. McIntyre.

Speaks on William Penn
William Penn's life and works were brought to the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club Tuesday by Edward E. Wildman, head of the Science Department of West Philadelphia High School.

The speaker told of the early life of the founder of Pennsylvania, and reminded his hearers that the trees of this section were in their gorgeous fall dress when he arrived—spending a week getting from New Castle to Chester.

An interesting collection of old maps was shown.

Rummage Sale Nov. 5
The Ladies' Aid of the Narberth Episcopal Church will hold a rummage sale at 19 W. Lancaster avenue, Ardmore, on Saturday, November 5. Anyone desiring to make contributions should bring them to the church or notify the following, who are members of the committee: Mrs. Samuel MacAdams, Mrs. W. J. Bailey, Mrs. Samuel Russell, Mrs. E. Guy Steinfeld and Mrs. Ralph Cook.

Wherefor should the spirit of Roosevelt be proud and postal-poll prognosticators imagine a vain thing, as with complete irresponsibility they stomp up and down the land? In the tight little borough of Narberth, which does its own thinking and which neither inflated with the boom nor deflated with the depression, as was the case with more snooty places, which need not be mentioned, a great majority of the voters have kept their feet on the ground and are quietly awaiting the morning of the 8th, proximo, when they can mark their ballots for Hoover for President and Ditter for Congress and for all the other candidates who have been nominated by the Republican party.

But the heathen have been raging so furiously of late, the Democratic donkey has brayed so loud and the Socialist owl has hooted so persuasively, that the Johnson Republican Club of Narberth has decided that steps should be taken to indicate to all and sundry that the G. O. P. flag still flies in Narberth and that under its untrampled folds the faithful of the borough and vicinity should have an opportunity to gather for the expression of the satisfaction and the confidence which now enthuse them, and to see and hear in the flesh some of the leaders and candidates of their persuasion.

That gathering will be held in the Narberth theatre hall this Friday evening, the 28th, beginning at 8.15 o'clock, and will take the form of a testimonial expression to the County Leader, Charles Johnson, of Norristown, who will be present. It will be the first time that Mr. Johnson has officially visited Narberth, but in this instance his consent was readily obtained because of the personal interest which he has felt in the achievements of the Republican organization here bearing his name.

Henry A. Smith, president of the Johnson Republican Club, will preside, assisted by the local members of the Republican County Committee. Among the speakers will be J. William Ditter, the Republican candidate for Congress from the new Montgomery County district. That fact in itself should insure a large attendance, for, as soon as the new Congress convenes, Mr. Ditter will be Narberth's representative there, a man who is much closer to Narberth

Big Hoover Rally to be Held at Bala-Cynwyd

With band music, singing and a group of prominent speakers, the Republicans of the Bala-Cynwyd section are entertaining the voters next Wednesday in behalf of President Hoover. The meeting will be held in the Woman's Club Building, Bala avenue and Levering Mill road.

Men and women of the entire Lower Merion and Narberth sections have been invited to attend. Present will be J. William Ditter, candidate for Congress; Fred C. Peters, candidate for the Legislature from this district, and William E. Zimmerman from the Third; W. Russell Green, Mrs. David Patterson and other local citizens. Efforts are being made to secure another speaker of prominence.

The rally is to start at 8.00 P. M.

Republican Workers Meet to Plan Election Duties

The largest meeting of active political workers in the history of the Borough was held Tuesday night when some fifty local Republicans gathered at the Legion room to lay plans for a successful campaign in Narberth.

Under the chairmanship of Henry A. Smith the men and women making up the Republican Committee, and a number of other active workers discussed ways and means of producing a record vote in Narberth for the whole Republican slate. An effort will be made to present the issues of the campaign to all parts of the Borough.

"Washington Masquerade" is at Narberth Theatre

That amusing satire on politics and government, "Washington Masquerade," is playing at Narberth's Theatre this week-end. Its plot, and its cast, headed by Lionel Barrymore, Nils Asther and Karen Morley, make it well worth seeing.

Tom Mix will be Saturday's matinee star, in "The Rider of Death Valley."

William Powell and Kay Francis, teamed well together in several recent pictures, appear at Narberth next Monday and Tuesday in "The Jewel Robbery."

A double feature next Wednesday and Thursday, including 3.30 P. M. Wednesday, is the exciting "Congorilla," and the tenebrous romance, "The Crooner," starring Ann Dvorak and David Manners.

"Speak Easily" Comedy is Playing at Egyptian

Harry Leon Wilson's amusing Saturday Evening Post serial, "Speak Easily," is at the Cynwyd Theatre this Friday and Saturday, including the Saturday afternoon children's party. Buster Keaton and Jimmy "Schnozle" Durante are aided by a good cast in this funny tale of a humorless college professor, who becomes human when he supports a musical comedy, although he persists in correcting the pronunciation of "speakeasy."

Robert Armstrong and Lila Lee are in "Radio Patrol," which has many minutes of excitement for Egyptian-goers net Monday and Tuesday. Accompanying program includes the screens' newest and most popular comedy team, Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd, in "The Old Bull."

"Down To Earth," at the Egyptian Wednesday and Thursday, is recommended for sure enjoyment by everyone. Will Rogers, Irene Rich and Dorothy Jordan show how to enjoy the depression.

Very good plot development and character delineation is given in an unusually thrilling and well-screened story, "The Most Dangerous Game," which will be at Cynwyd next week-end. It concerns a strange man who greets visitors to his lonely island with the information that they will soon be given a start in a dash for liberty; and following a decent delay, he will commence hunting for them. There are other details of the hunt, of course—and they're mighty interesting.

Material on William Penn Available at Library

As frequently as one hears, reads and repeats the words "Penn's Treaty With the Indians," it is seldom if ever that one recognizes in oneself or in others a real comprehension of the import of the text. This document is too valuable, too significant in the life of the past, and too replete with inspiration or the future to be ignored, especially at the present time.

Already the State has begun its observance of the 250th anniversary of the arrival of William Penn, and schools, colleges and many institutions are inaugurating exercises to commemorate this event. An important part of the program has been the re-printing of the treaty text. The original treaty, which was written on parchment, was unfortunately destroyed by fire many years ago, but from what information was available a text, acknowledged to be authentic, has been preserved and is now being issued. The Library has one such copy on hand and will display it at the main desk for patrons to read.

Other material received recently is a small pamphlet life of Penn, issued by the Society of Friends, and two other pamphlets, "In Honor of William Penn" and "Pennsylvania's Founder and His Political Ideas," published and distributed by Chester P. Cook, of Narberth. These two copies of speeches delivered by authoritative speakers and historians at the two hundredth anniversary in 1882, and with the previously mentioned material may be examined at the Library during the next two weeks.

Thanks Supporters

For the past two seasons I have been interested in the welfare work for the Borough of Narberth. This was accomplished by donations from private citizens. The work was along lines of food, clothing, collecting, mending and distributing, employment and advice. Gas, water, electric bills were paid if necessary.

Donations of money were from twenty-five cents to fifty dollars, and were disbursed without any expense whatever.

Entire families were outfitted with clothing from Narberth residents. The women who helped are still working, meeting each Wednesday in Elm Hall from 10.00 A. M. to 4.00 P. M., mending the clothing before it is distributed. Anyone wishing clothing to be kept for Narberth families can leave same at the Fire Hall. We will continue with this line of work throughout the winter.

The families calling for assistance of one kind or another numbered as many some days as ten. The work was of a strictly confidential nature except in cases where it was necessary to assist in an emergency where organized aid was being given.

Since October 16th the work here has been taken over by Miss Gourlay from the Federation of Churches. I will therefore recommend that as she is now the official in charge of this work, the residents call on her for aid.

We wish to extend our thanks to the Narberth merchants for their donations of food, and the residents who were so generous with their aid, and supported us so willingly. To the loyal friends who helped, I wish to express my gratitude and thanks.
SUSAN K. MUELLER.

Banking Department Deputy Dies at Desk

J. B. Funsten, in Charge of Merion and Counties Banks, Stricken Tuesday

NEW OFFICIAL IN CHARGE

Frank Glatfelter was installed as special deputy of the State Banking Department in charge of the affairs of the Merion Title and Trust Company and the Counties Title and Trust Company, Ardmore, Wednesday morning, following the sudden death at his desk Tuesday afternoon of J. B. Funsten, Dr. William D. Gordon's representative at the Merion Title for nearly a year.

Mr. Glatfelter also has charge of four other closed banks in the Philadelphia area. Mr. Funsten's death will not cause any delay in liquidating the affairs of Ardmore's closed banks nor in the payment of dividends, officials of the State Banking Department said.

Mr. Funsten's death, which occurred almost instantly from heart attack, took place late Tuesday afternoon when he was finishing up his work for the day at the Counties Title. He was placed in charge of the Merion Title nearly a year ago and took over the affairs of the Counties when that bank closed its doors last summer.

On July 2 of this year Mr. Funsten married Miss Frances Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Buckley, of 349 West Lancaster avenue, Haverford. Mr. and Mrs. Funsten lived at Penn avenue and Station road, Wynnewood.

Born at Front Royal, Va., in 1890, the son of the late Bishop James Bowen Funsten, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Idaho from 1900 until 1918, Mr. Funsten graduated from the University of Virginia shortly before the war and served in the aviation corps overseas.

At the conclusion of the war he entered the banking business and before the end of 1919 was made a National Bank Examiner, assigned to the New York district. Later he became vice-president of the National Liberties Bank of New York.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his mother, who lives in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; a sister, Mrs. Roland Child, and three brothers, Stanley R. Funsten, of Rosemont; Dr. Robert Lee Funsten, of the University of Virginia, and William Funsten, of Pasadena, Calif.

Funeral services were held yesterday morning from St. James Protestant Episcopal Church, Richmond, Va., with interment in that city.

New Officers of Legion Installed Monday Night

Newly-elected officers of the Harold D. Speakman Post, American Legion, of Narberth, were installed by Ninth District Commander Leon Walt at the Legion Room on Monday night.

They are: William H. Durbin, commander; Henry A. Frye, first vice-commander; A. Perry Redifer, Jr., second vice-commander; Clifford W. Goodwin, adjutant; John A. Mowrer, Jr., finance officer; Rev. Robert E. Keighton, chaplain, and E. O. Ensinger, sergeant-at-arms.

Commander Durbin announced that plans were going ahead for the Armistice Sunday service and for the banquet. Marios Chios, Arcadia restaurant proprietor, has been selected as caterer.

He also announced the new House Committee, consisting of Ralph S. Dunne, chairman; Walter P. Miesen and Edward Ensinger.

Burgess Speaks on History of Borough

BRICK ROW A HIDEOUT

How Narberth became a Borough and some incidents in its history, together with a historical sketch of the development of the Borough as a form of government was discussed by Burgess Henry A. Frye in a talk before the James C. Simpson Men's Association of the Narberth Baptist Church on Tuesday night.

Describing a borough as that place in England where self-government first developed, Mr. Frye pointed out that it became a State within a State and was responsible for the granting of rights of government from the Crown. The first borough was heard of in England in the 13th century, he said, while today, a borough in Montgomery County, Norristown, is the largest borough in the world.

The original boundaries of Narberth, the speaker said, included that section known as Anthwyn Farms. Due to the opposition of several owners of large farms, who objected to being taxed to help pay for improvements in the village, the borough limits were redrawn, leaving out that section.

In speaking of the Playground, Mr. Frye cited General W. W. Atterbury's unsolicited comment made to the late Alexander C. Shand, that "it is the finest example of civic pride and civic enterprise anywhere on the Pennsylvania System."

In the course of his talk the Burgess mentioned several things in Narberth's history which are not generally known. For example, that the Fire House was, until the setting up of three voting districts in 1924, the largest polling place in Montgomery County and possibly in the State; that the Brick Row was a hideout for criminals from Philadelphia; that the Pennsylvania Railroad was responsible for the borough being located where it is, instead of in the vicinity of Montgomery avenue and Wynnewood road, where the first settlement in this section was made since it was on the old Columbia and Philadelphia Railroad; that a hotel was erected in 1876 on the south side near the station to house 3000 Centennial guests, and that it burned down three years later; that the Narberth School House, built in 1894, cost $15,000.

At the business meeting of the Association, which followed Mr. Frye's talk, a Nominating Committee, consisting of George D. Grow, Maxwell Stoughton and Harvey C. Keim, was appointed to prepare nominations of officers for presentation at the November meeting.

Bake Sale Announced

The Finance and Budget Committee announce a Bake Sale for Saturday morning, November 5th. The proceeds will be devoted to the expenses of the P. T. A., including the radio which has been ordered for the school. The sale will be held in the store adjacent to Lang's Delicatessen on Haverford avenue.

1st Community Service Draws Big Audience

Dr. Joseph Fort Newton Delivers Remarkable Sermon at Boro Church

RAINEY NEXT SPEAKER

An audience that filled every seat and remained standing in the rear, gathered in the Narberth Baptist Church last Sunday evening to hear Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, who was the preacher at the first of this season's series of Community services. In spite of the pouring rain and chilly atmosphere, which made it the most inclement Sunday evening of the season, that service was a great success from every point of view. The music, the well-balanced program, the preaching and the attendance all combined to give it distinction and force. While the attendance was made up predominantly of those Narberth people who have flocked to community services in the past, there were, in addition, people present from Cynwyd, Merion and Wynnewood, and at the close it was like a reunion of old friends who had not seen each other in church together in a long time.

Stanley Reiff, the organist, opened the service by playing as a prelude Tschakowsky's "Andante Cantabile," the delightful, singing quality of which filled in most agreeably for those who were seated, the delay made necessary by late arrivals and the search of the ushers to find places for them. After the congregational singing of "Come Thou, Almighty King," the Rev. Robert E. Keighton, the pastor, offered an invocation and read as the Scripture lesson the parable of the Good Samaritan. The choir sang "Fierce Was the Wild Billow," by Noble, followed by the offertory, which, judging by the appearance of the plates as the ushers carried them up the aisle, was a real one.

Dr. Newton's sermon was unquestionably one of the most remarkable in thought, force and conviction which has ever been delivered in Narberth. No attempt will be made here to summarize it, but it is possible to indicate that it held that large audience spell-bound. People listened with wrapt attention and in complete silence. Even the habitual church-coughers were quiet. Added to the persuasiveness of Dr. Newton's thought, the clarity and beauty of the language which he selected to present some of the simplest and most fundamental principles of a religious life, was the power and the magnetism of his personality. He spoke persuasively, as has been said, but also with earnest conviction and belief and with a touch of authority.

In his introductory remarks he spoke of himself as being a near neighbor of Narberth, of his interest in this vicinity, and of the satisfaction which it gave him to go from place to place and to address a community service. Quoting from Robert Frost, "Something there is which does not love a wall," he expressed his own gratification that the walls which shut in various religious groups are crumbling and said, in beautiful

Every year, heretofore, the Holy Name Societies of individual Catholic parishes in Philadelphia and points nearby, have had a joint rally in some large auditorium. The purpose of these rallies has ever been to make a public demonstration of loyalty to Christ the King, upon Whose feast day the rally will be made this year. The purpose is also to bring to the attention of everybody the general aim of the Holy Name Societies all over the world, i. e., to promote reverence for the sacred name of Christ and to make public protest against cursing, blasphemy and unclean language.

Last year Convention Hall in Philadelphia could not nearly accommodate the throngs, so next Sunday will be an innovation. There are twenty churches picked as centers, whereat the nearby parishes will meet.

The great honor of being selected as the meeting place of the Main Line

Election to be Discussed at Club Meeting Tuesday

The Women's Community Club of Narberth will hold its regular meeting in the Girl Scout wing of the Community Building on Tuesday afternoon, at 2.30. The program will be in charge of the Legislative Committee, Mrs. W. Russell Green, chairman. The topic will be the forthcoming election.

Mrs. Burns Best, chairman of the Music Department, will present Miss Leonore Cristin, who will play some of her own compositions. Leonore is a pupil in the Narberth Public School and for two years has received awards for her exceptional work at the Children's Concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Mrs. J. E. Burrill will be the hostess.

The Board of Directors will hold a meeting on Tuesday morning, November 8, at the home of the president, Mrs. Joseph A. Hongler, on Merion avenue.

Parent-Teachers to Form Study Groups

Narberth Association Opens Season Auspiciously at School

BAKE SALE IS PLANNED

Preparations are already well under way for the November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Narberth, which so auspiciously opened the 1932-33 season on October 17th. In spite of the teeming rain over a hundred were in enthusiastic attendance.

After the "White House" Invocation led by Miss Mary L. Hoover, and the salute to the flag led by Scout Robert Tyson, several of the rousing P. T. A. songs to "break the ice," were led by Miss Frances Fricke with a charm all her own.

Mrs. W. G. Briner, President, occupied the chair. She outlined in well chosen words the ideals and aims of the Narberth P. T. A. and bespoke the cooperation of the membership in making the community, the school and every home more sympathetic and helpful in the tremendously important work of training children for citizenship.

Committee reports indicated activity that insures a successful year. Mrs. S. J. McCartney, past president, announced the formation of a study group to treat with the younger children. A group for the discussion of adolescent children's problems will be under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph Perry. Since it is through the study groups that any P. T. A. develops its greatest benefit to the community at large, it is hoped that the enrollment will be large. Other groups will be formed to meet the convenience and wishes of the membership. Mrs. M. Ernest Davis, Telephone, Narberth 4136 is Chairman of all study groups and all women interested in this important phase of the work are invited to communicate their desire to enroll to Mrs. Davis.

The membership committee reported excellent progress, as did the committee on the "Child Welfare" Magazine. The program committee announced

Johnson, Ditter and Peters to Attend G. O. P. Rally Tonight

Narberth Theatre Hall to be Scene of First Official Visit of County Leader to Borough; Rousing Time Anticipated

Coming Here Tonight

CHARLES JOHNSON long time Montgomery County Republican leader, who will pay his first "official" visit to Narberth this Friday evening at the G. O. P. Rally at the Theatre Hall.

Boys' Club Meeting is Well Attended

Edward H. Snow, Junior High Principal, Gives Talk on Sportsmanship

McINTYRE PRAISES PLAN

An inspiring talk on sportsmanship by Edward H. Snow, principal of Lower Merion Junior High School, featured the "Charter Meeting" of the Narberth Boys' Club, held in the Legion Room of the Narberth Community Building Tuesday night and attended by over 150 men and boys.

Among the other speakers were William T. McIntyre, president of the Ardmore Chamber of Commerce, who said, "if you accomplish nothing else besides keeping the boys off the street corners you will have justified your existence. More lives are wrecked on the street corners and in pool rooms than anywhere else."

Harvey Harman, Penn's football coach, made a brief talk, as did Burgess Henry A. Frye, Art Cooke, who is coaching the Boys' Club football team, and Joseph Berta, the president of the organization.

The thanks of the organization will be extended to Dr. J. J. Schembs and Dr. A. J. Denman, who have offered to provide their services for members who are injured while participating in athletic contests.

Fred Walzer presided and Horace Entriaken rendered a song, with Mrs. Harold Griest as accompanist. Ice cream was provided by Mr. McIntyre.

Speaks on William Penn

William Penn's life and works were brought to the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club Tuesday by Edward E. Wildman, head of the Science Department of West Philadelphia High School.

The speaker told of the early life of the founder of Pennsylvania, and reminded his hearers that the trees of this section were in their gorgeous fall dress when he arrived—spending a week getting from New Castle to Chester.

An interesting collection of old maps was shown.

Rummage Sale Nov. 5

The Ladies' Aid of the Narberth Episcopal Church will hold a rummage sale at 19 W. Lancaster avenue, Ardmore, on Saturday, November 5. Anyone desiring to make contributions should bring them to the church or notify the following, who are members of the committee: Mrs. Samuel MacAdams, Mrs. W. J. Bailey, Mrs. Samuel Russell, Mrs. E. Guy Steinfeld and Mrs. Ralph Cook.

Wherefor should the spirit of Roosevelt be proud and postal-poll prognosticators imagine a vain thing, as with complete irresponsibility they stomp up and down the land? In the tight little borough of Narberth, which does its own thinking and which neither inflated with the boom nor deflated with the depression, as was the case with more snooty places, which need not be mentioned, a great majority of the voters have kept their feet on the ground and are quietly awaiting the morning of the 8th, proximo, when they can mark their ballots for Hoover for President and Ditter for Congress and for all the other candidates who have been nominated by the Republican party.

But the heathen have been raging so furiously of late, the Democratic donkey has brayed so loud and the Socialist owl has hooted so persuasively, that the Johnson Republican Club of Narberth has decided that steps should be taken to indicate to all and sundry that the G. O. P. flag still flies in Narberth and that under its untrampled folds the faithful of the borough and vicinity should have an opportunity to gather for the expression of the satisfaction and the confidence which now enthuse them, and to see and hear in the flesh some of the leaders and candidates of their persuasion.

That gathering will be held in the Narberth theatre hall this Friday evening, the 28th, beginning at 8.15 o'clock, and will take the form of a testimonial expression to the County Leader, Charles Johnson, of Norristown, who will be present. It will be the first time that Mr. Johnson has officially visited Narberth, but in this instance his consent was readily obtained because of the personal interest which he has felt in the achievements of the Republican organization here bearing his name.

Henry A. Smith, president of the Johnson Republican Club, will preside, assisted by the local members of the Republican County Committee. Among the speakers will be J. William Ditter, the Republican candidate for Congress from the new Montgomery County district. That fact in itself should insure a large attendance, for, as soon as the new Congress convenes, Mr. Ditter will be Narberth's representative there, a man who is much closer to Narberth

With band music, singing and a group of prominent speakers, the Republicans of the Bala-Cynwyd section are entertaining the voters next Wednesday in behalf of President Hoover. The meeting will be held in the Woman's Club Building, Bala avenue and Levering Mill road.

Men and women of the entire Lower Merion and Narberth sections have been invited to attend. Present will be J. William Ditter, candidate for Congress; Fred C. Peters, candidate for the Legislature from this district, and William E. Zimmerman from the Third; W. Russell Green, Mrs. David Patterson and other local citizens. Efforts are being made to secure another speaker of prominence.

The rally is to start at 8.00 P. M.

Republican Workers Meet to Plan Election Duties

The largest meeting of active political workers in the history of the Borough was held Tuesday night when some fifty local Republicans gathered at the Legion room to lay plans for a successful campaign in Narberth.

Under the chairmanship of Henry A. Smith the men and women making up the Republican Committee, and a number of other active workers discussed ways and means of producing a record vote in Narberth for the whole Republican slate. An effort will be made to present the issues of the campaign to all parts of the Borough.

Narberth Girl Scouts to Go on Hike Tomorrow

This is Girl Scout Week to commemorate the birthday of the founder, Juliette Low, and Troop No. 8 has been very busy with preparations. On Sunday the girls will appear in uniform en masse at the Narberth Presbyterian Church.

The hike, which was postponed last week on account of rain will take place this Saturday, starting from Scout Headquarters at 11 o'clock. The Patrol leaders will lay the trail. The destination is to be a surprise. Elaborate plans are under way for the next meeting.

Admission to the Troop is closed until there is a vacancy. "Cappy" will have charge of the waiting list and when the first vacancy occurs the first person on the waiting list will be admitted.

Last week we had the pleasure of awarding Second Class badges to Shirley Vincent and Sue Wilson. This week several girls passed their Nature Test and are well on the way to Second Class.

The Troop is working out a program to be followed in aiding the district nurse, but this has not been completed.

We learned this week how to whip the end of a rope, as well as how to play new and exciting games. The meeting closed with "Home on the Range."

Better Get Busy

If there are a considerable number of people in Narberth who are opposed to abrogation of the borough charter and a merger with the encompassing township, it might be wise for them to bestir themselves, for Citizen Burns, that self-appointed Charon who would ferry the corpse of the borough across the Styx and into the shadows of the township, is persuasively engaged in a house-to-house canvass and claims that the signatures which he has already obtained are nearly sufficient to qualify the petition for presentation to the county court. At present all the advantage rests with Mr. Burns. He is responsible to no one. He can visit each voter alone and say whatever he sees fit in order to persuade that one to sign up.

The citizens' mass meeting last spring appeared to indicate that the merger is strongly opposed by substantial citizens of Narberth. The poll which was conducted later by Our Town pointed the same way, and as a result of those indications of public opinion some who had been previously associated with the merger movement dropped out and the matter appeared to be settled. Not so with Mr. Burns, who has long been an agitator for a merger. Recognizing that the present depression gives him a hearing which was never before granted by the people, and availing himself of figures which were developed by Messrs. Wohling and Rankin, Mr. Burns is determined to leave no stone unturned to extinguish the borough charter for good and for all.

Single-minded determination, perseverance and hard work can accomplish almost anything that it desires, if it meets nothing but indifference from those whose wishes and interests it seeks to thwart. That is the situation in which the diligent Mr. Burns now finds himself, and he is making the headway that is to be expected. Our Town has repeatedly endeavored to call this situation to the attention of the people of the borough and has opened its news columns freely to Mr. Burns in order that the people might know from himself what he was doing.

There are some people who think that Council should be doing something about it, but this is a matter in which Council can not take the lead. The councilmen know that if they officially or personally should start an active opposition to Mr. Burns, he would say that that was an indication that the councilmen had a personal and private interest in maintaining an independent borough. He has already implied, in direct contradiction of the facts, that the councilmen are a source of individual expense to the voters, whereas the councilmen serve without pay and the item in the borough budget which is unfortunately labeled "councilmanic expense" is really a miscellaneous account covering the cost of printing ordinances, office supplies, help and expenses.

Mr. Burns is conducting his campaign as a citizen, and as a citizen he is fully within his rights so long as he sticks to facts. If there is any desire to counteract what he is doing, that must be done by citizens as well. If there are

Shreds & Patches

Back-Street View

The modern method of routing automobile through-traffic away from the centers and the principal streets of cities not only deprives the traveler of any sight of those sections which have been intentionally adorned to please the public eye, those buildings, monuments and gardens to which any inhabitant would point with pride, but also those detours often disclose the shapeless and unadorned buttocks of the town. The Vagrant is not inclined to think that anything should be done about it nor to advocate that all the major and minor cities should suddenly execute an abrupt about-face. Things are well enough as they are and it is undoubtedly better that the inhabitants should be the ones who most frequently enjoy those civic beauties which their taxes provide and maintain, and that the automobile tourist should be shunted along his rapid way as dexterously as possible. He seldom can see anything more than six feet high, anyway, enclosed as he is in the low-roofed confines of the modern sedan.

Stone Soldier

Hartford, that fair capital city whose insurance towers and spires invite the eye and the admiration of all who travel by automobile up or down the Connecticut valley, at present discloses to the north-bound tourist, on a back-street corner, an object that is pathetic or whimsical, according to the point of view. It is a red sandstone statue of a Civil War soldier, obviously discarded and only one of the many pieces of stone debris which litter that vacant lot. Weather has wrought on it those effacements which red sandstone is especially unable to resist, and also it discloses gashes and bruises not unlike those ecclesiastical effigies in England that were hacked by Cromwell's men. Yet strangely, either from respect or pure whimsy, that discarded statue, hauled to that lone yard of stones, has been stood up erect, facing the street at the corner. Stiff and awkward, a horrible example of civic sculpture at its worst, that stone soldier still grasps the remnants of his musket, still wears his long coat and cape and his featureless face is still crowned with one of those square-visored French caps in which the boys in Blue marched and fought and died.

Discarded Relic

There is no reason for sentimentalizing that stone soldier which, as statuary, never more than sketched the crudest outline of the living men it was designed to commemorate. The people of Hartford have been wise to remove it from whatever conspicuous place it may once have occupied, yet The Vagrant, passing that way twice recently, was in doubt as to whether he would prefer that that statue should still stand in that place, or that it should have been decently buried long ago and not left to disintegrate before the eyes of anyone to whom the sentiments of the generation that followed the Civil War are deep-seated as boyhood itself. Undoubtedly that block of red stone was once revernone who are sufficiently interested in preserving the independent borough government to bestir themselves now in its behalf, that in itself is a pretty good indication that Mr. Burns is right after all, and that the sooner the charter is surrendered, the better it will be for all concerned. If the people of Narberth no longer desire to govern themselves, then they had better hire the township to do it on the lowest possible terms which is exactly what Mr. Burns desires and advocates.

tially reared and for many years was an object of some solace as a tangible memorial to the father, son, husband or brother who fell fighting in the Wilderness, at Malvern Hill, Gettysburg or in any other of the countless engagements in that long and hard-fought war. Small boys of The Vagrant's generation stood bare-headed before it on Decoration Days, while the local band played a dirge and the minister invoked the fatherly ear of that good, old Nineteenth Century God who actually did succor the widow and the fatherless. Other wars, other veterans and other gods have since filled the scene. Other statues, more seemly to our modern eyes, have been reared in conspicuous places. The Vagrant prefers to think that the man who hauled that old and scarred soldier to the Hartford dump stood him erect there because he could not outrage his own sentiments by leaving him otherwise. But the time is near at hand when it should be decently buried, for soon no one will be passing that way with an understanding of the motive which re-erected there a discarded relic of an outgrown generation.

smile, that he enjoyed going from one to another "as from room to room in the house of God."

The service concluded quickly after the sermon. There was a brief anthem by the choir and the concluding prayer and benediction by Mr. Keighton. It was a long time, however, before the audience had disengaged itself from its own greetings and had finally left the church. The program contained the announcement that the next Community service will be held in the same place on the evening of Sunday, November 20, when the speaker will be Dr. Howard P. Rainey, president of Bucknell University.

Parent-Teachers to Form Study Groups

nounced the meeting for November and explained the use of the program cards which were distributed and which are also planned to keep a record of attendance with the aim that each member present at six meetings will be asked to participate in a party in June.

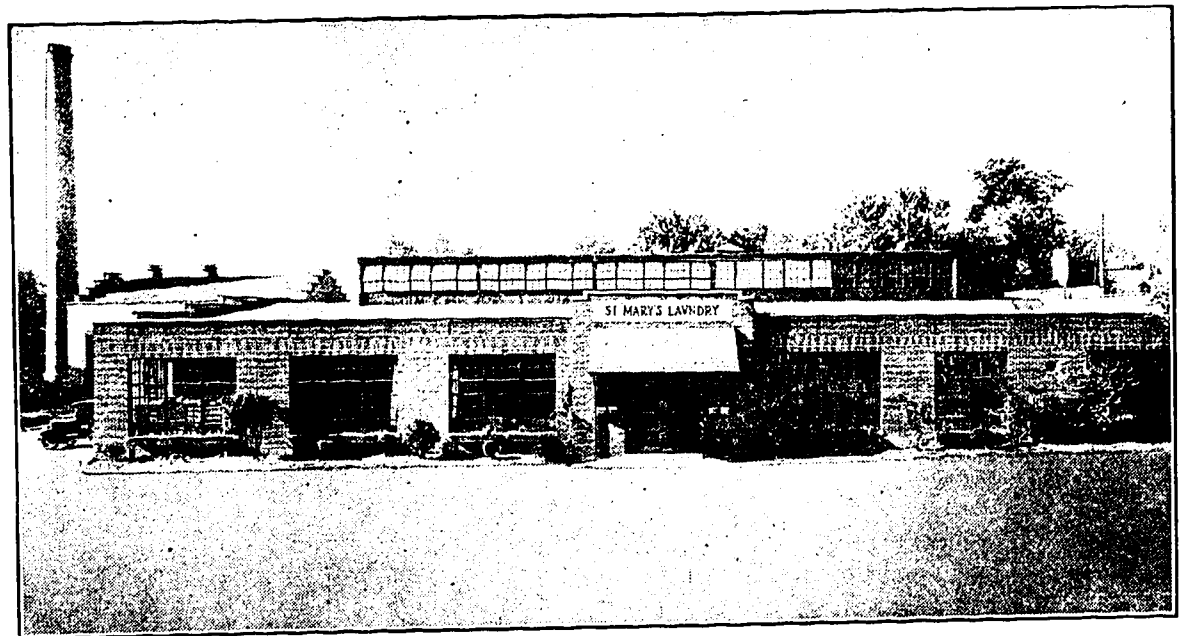

Mrs. W. A. Fox, who was one of the Narberth delegates to the recent State convention of the P. T. A. in York, reported the high lights of that interesting and instructive forum. Announcement was made of two honors which were bestowed; one to Mrs. C. H. Woolmington for completing the National Study Course and to the Narberth P. T. A. for attaining the rank of "standard association."

W. J. Drennen, Principal of the School, outlined comprehensively the improvements in the school curriculum and the changes in the teaching organization. Mr. Drennen expressed appreciation for an action of the association to provide a portable radio to enable the school to take advantage of the often beneficial educational features coming over the air.

The meeting was charmed with the vocal selections so graciously rendered by Mrs. Cletus Senft, accompanied by Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin.

The business session adjourned to the spacious corridors of the school which had assumed a festive appearance for the occasion. Here an hour of fellowship over a cup of coffee with cake brought to a close this very successful meeting. Mrs. R. J. Nash is chairman of the committee responsible for the delightful hospitality.

Every parent in the community is invited to come to the regular meetings of the P. T. A. Meetings are held the third Monday of each month at 8 P. M. in the School Auditorium.

Johnson, Ditter and Peters to Attend Rally Tonight
in residence and interests than was ever the case before the district was changed. He will be casting important votes for Narberth on the bonus, revision of the Volstead Act, taxation and countless other matters during the next two years. Local people should know what he looks like, what his personality is and something of his opinions. He is coming here to give Narberth people that opportunity. It will be easier to go around to the theatre hall, on Narberth avenue, this evening than to trot way down to Washington at some later time.

Another speaker will be Representative Fred C. Peters, of Ardmore, candidate for re-election to the Legislature. He has been here often before. He is an interesting speaker, an old friend and neighbor, who merits a large audience. Other speakers, other candidates, and even possibly a good, old-fashioned spell-binder or two will be present. It will be such a rousing political rally as has not enlivened Narberth for these many years. Figures and facts, fulminations and enthusiasms will fill that hall with good cheer for the faithful and dismay for their enemies. The committee would even have promised some red-fire, but Charlie Noel, although a member, forbade it in his capacity as fire chief. In addition to Chief Noel the Johnson Republican Club Committee in charge of this event are Henry A. Smith, Mrs. Louise V. Cockrill and K. F. Wood.

Forum Resumes Meetings Under Keighton's Leadership

The first meeting of the Forum, for the present season, was held in the social room of the Baptist Church last Wednesday evening. There was an attendance of eighteen people, a majority of whom were former members of the Forum group. It was decided to meet regularly on the third Wednesday evening of each month, in the same place. The general subject of the first meeting was an endeavor to work out or select a satisfactory definition of religion. There was a long and interesting discussion, following the preliminary outline of the subject by Rev. Robert E. Keighton, the leader.

It is not possible to state that a definition acceptable to all was achieved, and it may be that the group will be obliged to proceed with the winter's program of discussion, agreed that religion significantly exists, even though differing as to what it actually is. It seemed to some that religion is a matter of conduct; to others that it was a feeling initiated by God and reciprocated by man; to yet others, that it is a way of life, and finally, to one, at least, it was merely an emotion. Religion codified, elaborated and analyzed becomes something else, metaphysics or theology perhaps, in that man's view, but no no longer religion.

These varying viewpoints are revealed merely to indicate that the Forum remains, as in the past, a group for free discussion, and those who are members of it think that if it teaches nothing but tolerance and respect for contrary opinions, it is much worth while. The discussion will be continued at the next meeting on November 16, grouped about a definite topic which will be announced later.

Ardmore Girl Honored at Temple University

Elinore Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Chambers, 743 Beechwood road, Ardmore, has again been selected manager and coach of intra-mural baseball tournaments for girls at Temple University.

Miss Chambers is a graduate of Friends' Central High School, where she played two years of varsity hockey, three years of varsity basketball, and pitched on the baseball team for two seasons without losing a game. In 1930 she was chosen right full-back on the All-Philadelphia Scholastic Hockey Team.

Holy Name Societies to Meet at St. Margaret's Church
dreds of men from eight parishes will gather in St. Margaret's Hall, to hear inspiring speakers furnished by the Philadelphia Holy Name Union, and perhaps too also from Rev. Joseph J. Hannigan, St. Margaret's rector, and from Henry P. Carr, president of the local society. Following this, all the men will enter the church to receive the personal blessing of their Savior, through that impressive devotion, the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

Should you see the throngs of men entering the church hall at 4 P. M. or leaving the church about 5 o'clock—should you dwell on the fact that the same thing is going on in twenty churches in and near Philadelphia, thousands of men who have willingly and gladly left their rest and pleasures to be present at a devotion by no means compulsory, then perhaps you may doubt the words of the religious pessimist who so calmly states that Christianity has failed or that religion is all right for women and children, but not for virile men.

Penn Valley Garden Club Hears Mrs. Strawbridge
The Penn Valley Garden Club held the first fall meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. E. Burke Wilford, on Linden lane and Sycamore avenue, Merion, Wednesday morning. Mrs. George Holt Strawbridge was the speaker on "Flowers For the Flowerless." She told of the happiness that these flowers bring to those who have none.

The next meeting will be held on November 9, at the home of Mrs. J. Bruce Byall, Bryn Mawr avenue, in Penn Valley. The members will then work on the garments for the Red Cross, which will be among the activities of the club for this season.

Many Delegates Attend King's Daughters Convention

One hundred and thirty-five delegates attended the 31st annual Convention of the Montgomery County Union of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons in the Carmel Presbyterian Church, Edge Hill, Pa., on Wednesday, October 19.

Mrs. Fred Derby, of Narberth, State president, was present and gave a report of the King's Daughters' Home for the Aged at Narberth. She told how congenial and contented the guests of the King's Daughters are.

First Dance of Mulieres is This Friday Evening
One of the outstanding events in Narberth this Friday evening will be the first costume dance to be given by the Mulieres of the Narberth Fire Company, in the series of six winter dances.

This dance is for the young, the middle-aged and old. Bill Dohard's Orchestra will furnish the music and the hall will be decorated in gay Halloween trimmings. Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest costume and the funniest costume.

The dancing will begin at nine o'clock. There will be guests from Merion, Wynnewood, Narberth, Penn Valley, Philadelphia and New York. The hostesses will be Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller, the president; Mrs. C. C. Tyson, Mrs. L. B. Edgerton, Mrs. George Gilpin, Jr., Mrs. Charles Haist, Mrs. Charles Harnden, Mrs. J. E. Burrell and Mrs. Isaac McHose.

The second dance will be held on November 25, which will be a mixed dance, with the ages of the people from 16 and upwards. The young people will have charge of the next dance. The present subscribers' list has furnished the expenses for the entire series.

The next meeting of the Mulieres will be held at 2 P. M. on November 14, in Elm Hall. An election of officers will take place.

Indian summer.

The average date of first killing frost is October 31st.

Earliest date of killing frost in past 60 years was October 3rd.

First frost, 1931, was on November 6th.

Last February we mentioned a suet log, for the birds, in our columns. This might be a good time to review the subject. The log is better made of hickory or dogwood, as they are rough and offer foothold for the birds while picking the suet; smooth logs are useless. About two feet long is a good size, a strong screw-eye in the top will hold a heavy wire, with a hook at each end to loop over a low tree branch. About four inches in diameter the log should be, holes are drilled at a downward angle, and may be three-quarters of an inch in diameter, as many as the log will hold. Pack the holes with suet, hang the log from a tree, and watch for the woodpeckers and nut hatches; you may find them clinging "downside-up," but that's the way they work—and that's why the holes are drilled at a downward angle. And once the suet log is hung, see to it that it is kept filled; these birds more than pay their toll by keeping our trees free of bark beetles, borers and other insects, and will stay with us all winter if given water and a small banquet of a change in diet.

Every garden may be a bird sanctuary, or at least a pleasant visiting place for birds, if we will provide water for drinking and bathing—constantly, food and protection from their worst enemy—cats. The water is essential in winter as well as in summer. The food may be provided in the form of suet, grains and seed—provided that it is placed out of reach of squirrels. The planting of berried shrubs and trees will offer food and nesting places. The broad-leaved evergreens, such as rhododendrons and laurel, offer nesting sites and protection in winter. Our native birds may be divided into two classes, as to feeding habits, high feeders and low feeders. For the high feeders a squirrel-proof feeding box is necessary, a hopper arrangement is preferred, as it requires filling less often. Sunflower seed and hemp are first choice with chopped raw peanuts for desserts; this fare will attract the nut hatches, cardinal, titmouse and woodpeckers. For the birds that like to feed on the ground we find that they prefer finely cracked corn, millet, rape and hemp. Here we find the native sparrows, junco and towhee. These birds will pick under leaves for their food, whereas the English sparrow likes his bread crumbs in plain sight. The feeding place should be under shrubs or low trees, so that the hawks will not see what is going on. Water, grains, seeds and suet will bring the birds. Of course, the suet will be ground twice through the meat chopper so that it can be conveniently packed into the suet log.

Yes, Mabel! You are right! Dogwoods are better moved in springtime. The same applies to magnolias and birch trees. But there are so many shrubs and trees that may be moved in November, after the leaves fall, that you will be able to use up that part of the budget that you have allowed for fall planting. We are very glad that you like our garden column; we agree with you that it is one of the best features in the paper; it does seem a bit dull at times, but there is so much ground to cover. No! You can't please all of the people all of the time.

No Hunting in Penn Valley
Hunters are not welcome in Penn Valley. The Penn Valley Association called their attention this week to the fact that all hunting land in that section is posted. The Association with permission of the residents will patrol the district and all persons hunting there without written permission of the owner will be dealt with according to law.

Hannah Penn House to Observe "Hoover" Week

"Keep Hoover In" week will be held at the Hannah Penn House next week from Monday, October 31, until November 7. Luncheon will be served at 12.30 every day and there will be a program at 2 P. M. All those who are interested are cordially invited to attend. The committee includes Mrs. Clinton Rogers Woodruff, Mrs. Edwin C. Town, Mrs. Archibald S. Rader, Mrs. Newton Corson, Mrs. Robert Corson, Mrs. W. Scott McHenry and Miss Martha R. Harkness.

On election night, November 8, returns will be received by special wire. Refreshments will be served. The committee is Mrs. H. Tatnall Brown, Jr., Mrs. Alexander E. Patton, Mrs. William B. Chamberlain and Mrs. William T. Lingelbach.

Hear Mrs. Strawbridge

The Penn Valley Garden Club held a meeting at the home of Mrs. E. Burke Wilford, on Linden lane, Merion, Tuesday morning. The speaker was Mrs. George Holt Strawbridge, chairman for the Flowers for the Flowerless.

Foreign Mission Society Luncheon to be Nov. 7

The annual luncheon of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Narberth Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in the Parish Hall on Monday, November 7, at 12.30. Annual reports will be given by the officers of the society.

Mrs. J. H. Patton will give the introduction of the study book for the year, "Lady Fourth's Daughter." Mrs. A. J. Sigel and Mrs. M. M. Moore will give reports of the Philadelphia Branch Meeting in Pittsburgh. For reservations see Mrs. Ralph Cook, 112 Essex avenue.

Review Baum Novel

The Literature Group of the Women's Community Club, of Narberth, held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry W. Dotzenroth, on Cleveland avenue, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Walter J. Odiome gave a very interesting review of "Secret Sentence," by Vicki Baum.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Clay Banks, on Moreno road, Penn Valley, on Tuesday, November 8. Mrs. Jesse S. Harris will review a book.

There Are Very Definite Reasons Why Republicans Should Vote the Straight Democratic Ticket on November 8, 1932

A New Day is Dawning

There is little question that a Democrat will be the next President.

There is no question that the next Congress will be preponderantly Democratic.

These changes will come about chiefly because of the vast legions of Republicans who are about to vote the straight Democratic ticket, many of them for the first time.

These millions of men and women give evidence that they regard loyalty to their Country's best interest as far transcending any obligation which is claimed for a blind party fealty.

It is not unlikely that the example of Mr. Hoover, in filing his name, in six States, for the Democratic nomination for President, as he did in 1924, may have had some little influence with these Americans as they sought to come to accurate conclusions regarding their primary duty in the present pressing circumstances.

At this point, it should be admitted that countless other citizens are deserting the Republican Party merely because they desire a change for the improvement they expect it shall make in their personal affairs.

In such cases, not much thought may have accompanied the decision, even if the conclusion is thoroughly sound and sensible, but any one who has endeavored to make himself familiar with the seething intellectual unrest throughout America cannot fail to have discerned that Republicans are leaving their party in great numbers because they are impressed vividly that their party has completely left them.

THE LAST TWELVE YEARS OF REPUBLICAN RULE IN NATIONAL AFFAIRS AFFORD THE CONSPICUOUS AND OVERWHELMING REASON WHY THESE UNITED STATES ARE IN THEIR PRESENT SORRY AND GRIEVOUS FLIGHT.

No argument which confines itself to the straight and honest facts can alter the absolute and essential truth of that statement, and no man who has contented himself with only superficial summaries of the post-war period, probably the most important epoch in American history, has any fair right to enter the lists in his effort to prove that the debacle has been created primarily by causes beyond our own control.

The pity of it is that quite too many men and women, extremely hard pressed with their own affairs, and influenced almost altogether by the casual and current thought of their own environment, continue to believe so many things which are not so, absurdities which are given the semblance of truth by constant reiteration, with the result that a sustained party allegiance is very frequently regarded as paramount to a citizen's duty to cast his ballot with a proper and reasonable knowledge of its influence on the well-being of his Country, not only for the day thereof, but for the sake of a lustrous future which those who follow him should not be denied.

Tariff Things That Are Not So

The subject of Tariff, for instance, might afford an illustration of the illogical thought which has been allowed to have full sway with those who ingenuously accept what they are told and admit no obligation to delve into the actual facts for themselves.

Ask the average, dyed-in-the-wool Republican voter where the Democrats stand on the Tariff and you will get "Free Trade" for your answer.

Continue the discussion and you will learn that the Republican tariff keeps goods from coming in from abroad and as a consequence we have "good times" in America.

From this it follows that the Democrats are not interested in having "good times" in America and that they are diabolically concerned in bringing woe and worry to all and sundry.

As you consider the problem, it may be well for YOU to cogitate the manner in which your own life is influenced by the tariff regulations and ask yourself whether you are one of the 25% who are associated with tariff-benefited industries or one of the 75% who are engaged in pursuits which have no direct relation to the subject.

Now, it should not be difficult to agree that a real prosperity for America must encompass all the people, not only a small part, and don't you think it is possible, with our skill and statesmanship, to devise ways and means to advance the interests of the entire nation and not to be eternally and infernally applying ourselves to only a very small portion of our great multiplicity of industrial, commercial and agricultural interests?

When Hoover Went Overboard!

At any rate, Herbert Hoover pleaded for that very thing in October, 1928, before his election, but as President he subscribed to the direct opposite when he signed the infamous Smoot-Hawley Bill, an abomination which has been instrumental in destroying huge volumes of foreign trade, arraying almost every important consuming country of the earth against our products, and a primary reason why tremendous sums of American capital are now invested in European manufacturing plants which are supplying millions of dollars' worth of goods previously drawn from this Country.

And don't you remember that when this outrageous bill was signed, the highest rates of all times, you were told that it would forthwith restore our domestic industries and isn't it within your own personal knowledge that ever since that memorable approval, in 1930, our volume of trade has constantly dwindled and dwindled until it has reached the lowest ebb within the memory of this generation?

You will also remember that when the bill had reached President Hoover, who first said he would not sign it, then said he would, apparently changing his attitude almost daily for two weeks, more than a thousand of the leading economists of the Country urged him to reject it and submit very cogent reasons why he should do so, predicting with startling accuracy the dire results which have since come to pass.

If the present situation is allowed to go unaltered, if there is not a complete change in the viewpoint governing the development of home industries and the increase of foreign trade, the country will be confronted, according to the most competent and conscientious experts in the nation, with a collapse in our whole industrial scheme which will be far-reaching and vicious in its effects.

The Truth Shall Make You Free. To accept meekly and to believe supinely everything which you are told—to make no effort to study the question for yourself—to be fooled indefinitely by the "free trade" nonsense and to go no farther than your nose in exploring this vitally important feature of American life—surely this is not your concept of what you owe to your country and the aid which you, as an individual, can furnish in bringing the opportunities of the land to their most glorious estate.

Accept what is submitted here as only a partisan presentation—go to impartial sources for your facts, apply your own common sense to what you find, and then support your convictions to the full limit of your capabilities.

That's what makes a good citizen—and not merely a slave to custom nor yet a victim of delusion and of snare.

When Is Business Really Better?

The spectacle of the last three years must make all unbiased observers agree that panics and depressions can occur irrespective of the party in power.

IT ALSO SHOULD BE EQUALLY WELL KNOWN THAT EVERY BUSINESS UPSET IN AMERICA DURING THE LAST 40 YEARS HAS EITHER OCCURRED DURING A REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION OR HAS COME TO PASS IN A DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION AS A DIRECT RESULT OF REPUBLICAN LEGISLATION IN A PRECEDING ADMINISTRATION.

If that seems hard to believe, then, once again, you are urged to uproot the facts as a patriot, not as a partisan, if you truly seek a sound basis for your course of procedure.

And whilst you are about it, you might as well confirm another highly interesting fact, i. e., that there is more business done in Democratic years than in Republican years, strange as it may seem to those who have been stuffed with information to the contrary for ever so long.

But don't confine your study to only the commercial aspects of the national panorama, but bore deep into the heart and soul of a beloved and distressed America, and conjure where the indecision, and procrastination, and the failure to come to grips with the case as it actually was, correspond with what you think ought to be the rule of action in a favored land like unto this.

The lamentations had to reach the heavens before a solitary move was made—always "prosperity was around the corner," would be here in "60 days," reports of unemployment were "grossly exaggerated," "rugged individualism" would save the day, and it was not until the President was pressed fiercely from all sources to cooperate in affording some degree of relief to the harrowing conditions that the first step was made more than a year after that fateful October day in 1929.

The Era of Buncombe

In the meantime we were continuously regaled with a devious insincerity and the most abject flattery which have ever characterized the conduct of public affairs in America and let shame be visited on those who were accountable for it.

And now we are told that it was all unavoidable, that the world afar brought it on, that not much could be done about it and they beseech us to forgive what has passed and try them out again.

Ah, no more do we hear of that elimination of poverty, that poverty which, it was said nearly 2000 years ago, would always be with us, to soften the hearts of men, to make them grateful for their own gifts and possessions, to make them considerate and mindful of those less blessed, and neither do we hear, do we, of that superb skill which was to land a chicken in every pot and, forsooth, two cars (not one) in every garage?

And when all this was said and promised the greatest economic cataclysm in all history was less than a year away—and when it swept in on us it found our national bark, rigged with every possible rag of sail, smashing itself, full speed and headlong, into terrible destruction.

The wreckage strewn itself along the shores, whilst ten million Americans look for work they cannot find, more than 20% of our business concerns in bankruptcy, life-time savings gone beyond recall, the fearful onslaught of it all felt in every household, with a depreciation in the national wealth which is said to exceed 250 billions of dollars, or four or five times the entire amount spent by the country in the World War.

Historians yet unborn will scan closely the archives of this dark interval, graphically portraying the exhausting fate which befell us, and they shall record that we rejected those who had led us so ingloriously, so incompetently, despite the unparalleled representations which had heralded their selection and which they failed so utterly and so miserably to fulfill.

Never Again Shall It Be Done!

For it is ordained that a man must live among his own kind to take precedence amongst them and to be their ruler, not bespread himself o'er the face of the earth in barter and in trade, only to return to his native hearth after nearly 50 years had passed, for such procedure, say what one will, is strangely alien to the fine spirit of an exalted America, whose true sons love it above all else and who attest their right to serve by a sterling devotion to home ties which no man can ever question nor sever.

Little wonder, Herbert Hoover, that you were bereft and bewildered as to what to do when the emergency confronted you and the lesson we learn from your career is that our Presidents must be to the manner-born, intimate and affectionate with our people, our hopes and our aspirations, a whole life long, not merely the shank-end of it, and if your first American vote was not cast until you were 45 years old, then we, as well as you, may have to await posterity's verdict before the guilt is finally fixed and the complete story told.

But, say we all of us, let the dead bury the dead, and with renewed courage, and a faith made firmer by the adversity which has long been our portion, we shall proceed to undo the damage which has been done—we shall move on, under a new and better equipped leadership, to a brighter and a happier day, for the night has been so long and the burdens have indeed been too great for many good men to bear, God help them.

In next week's "Our Town," there will be a discussion of Prohibition and Pendleton—and certainly you should be keenly interested in the calibre and capacity of the man who essays to represent Montgomery County in Congress, the first time we shall have a seat which will be all our own.

Until then, succeed somehow in giving vent to the righteous indignation which ought to possess you when you observe the vulnerable Atterbury (who can hardly be proud of his own major moves during the last three years) and the outlandish Ford (with his plants in six or seven foreign countries) trying to inject a horrible fear in the voters who are beholden to them for livelihoods. In some parts of Europe this kind of foil play would be punishable by imprisonment and loss of citizenship. It is a direct and wretched attack on an untrammelled ballot and deserves the scorn of every clear-thinking American. It is altogether likely that if Samuel Insull were still in America we might expect the same kind of outburst from him, and no doubt about it.

Maroon Eleven Clashes With "Galloping Ghosts" At Ardmore Tomorrow

Abington is Greatest Rival of Lower Merion

Old York Road Eleven Comes to Pennypacker Field as Favorite

SERIES BEGAN IN 1920

Football fans along the Main Line think that the Radnor-Lower Merion game is the ne plus ultra of all sports contests during the season, but for the edification of those who aren't in the "know," the Lower Merion boys, coaches and students, would rather defeat Abington High School than any team on the schedule.

Radnor places a team upon the field each autumn that the Maroon likes to play, for they know that the Wayne coach and the players are good sportsmen and that whoever wins, there will be no alibis for the loser.

On the other hand, well—she wore a glove.

The Galloping Ghosts come to Lower Merion tomorrow afternoon determined to win from the hated Maroon. The present series of games with the York Road team started back in 1920 when Bill Powell and the younger Stillwagon scored touchdowns to take the first game of the series, 13 to 7. Since that year the Abington squad has been able to defeat the Maroon eleven but three times. In 1921 they won, 21 to 6; in 1927 they won, 13 to 6, when Bud Kern was the big gun, and again in 1928, when Kern galloped sixty yards for one touchdown and scored another for good measure.

The series:

1920—L. M., 13; Abington, 7.
1921—L. M., 6; Abington, 21.
1922—L. M., 24; Abington, 13.
1923—L. M., 20; Abington, 0.
1924—L. M., 26; Abington, 0.
1925—L. M., 6; Abington, 0.
1926—L. M., 13; Abington, 0.
1927—L. M., 6; Abington, 13.
1928—L. M., 0; Abington, 12.
1929—L. M., 7; Abington, 0.
1930—L. M., 6; Abington, 0.
1931—L. M., 6; Abington, 0.

The game played in 1929 probably brought the most sensational play of the entire history of the series. "Tip" Peters intercepted a pass on the Lower Merion 8-yard line with 30 seconds left to play, and ran through the entire Abington team for a touchdown, 92 long, precious yards. Peters duplicated this feat against Radnor later in the season, scoring after the game had ended so far as time was concerned, by running the ball about 65 yards after intercepting a pass.

An interesting thing to note about the Abington series is the absence of tie games. Only once in the history of the schools has there been a tie. That was in 1917, when they each scored 6 points. Frank McGrady, Leo Rountree and Spencer Stillwagon played in the backfield that year. Dick Conley was captain.

The teams did not meet after that game until 1920.

While comparative scores indicate the Maroon to be about on a par with Abington, this writer picks Abington as the probable winner. The psychology is with the minions of Snodgrass, due to their defeat at the hands of Wilmington, while the locals were winning easily against Lansdowne.

The result of the game will depend upon the extent the Maroon eleven is willing to punish itself individually and collectively, for the strength is present, both in numbers and in individual brilliance of its members. If they want to loaf, then it's a sure defeat, but if they give their "all," then they can overcome the visiting Snodgrass & Co.

Christian Science Lecture

at Seville Theater Nov. 6
"Christian Science: A Religion of Healing Through Prayer" is the title of a lecture to be delivered by Mrs. Nelvia E. Ritchie, C. S. B., of Sewickley, Pennsylvania, on Sunday afternoon, November 6, at 3.30 o'clock, in the Seville Theatre, Bryn Mawr.

The lecturer is a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The lecture is given under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Ardmore. The public is cordially invited.

Wins Essay Contest

William I. Crawford, of Wynnewood, member of the fourth class of the Pennsylvania Nautical Schoolship Annapolis, was awarded a $10 prize for the best essay written during the summer cruise during the graduation exercises held last Friday

Norristown threw a scare into the ranks of the Suburban League leaders last week by trouncing the Upper Darby eleven, 20 to 0. The power of the Blue and White eleven was in doubt until this surprising one-sided victory.

Radnor looks to be the class of the suburban area this season. A huge, powerful line looms up in front of an exceedingly heavy pair of backs in Max Mongiello and Bob Lamley, and the two whippets, Quarterback Tindle and Halfback Sammy Link. The team is ponderous, but fast in several positions; the backs can all run the ball; every man in the backfield is adept at throwing and receiving passes. And to climax the situation, the team, as a whole, is never licked.

Radnor demonstrated the latter quality to the Queen's taste last Friday at Cheltenham, when with the ball on her own five-yard line and about two minutes to play, the big Red eleven started an offensive that carried them across the goal line 95 yards away for the winning points, and all of that against an aggressive, inspired team that was playing desperately for a tie. That never-say-die spirit is mostly what makes the Radnor eleven such a dangerous foe at any time.

Abington is throwing sand into the eyes of the Maroon team. Three miserable exhibitions against weaker teams, the last a defeat at the hands of a team from Wilmington High School, does not hide the fact that they boast a strong team and a dangerous contender for the suburban crown. The Wilmington defeat has no bearing on the outcome of the suburban race, so wouldn't Snodgrass hold them in check in a game like that to cover up their real power? We guess he would, and has.

Collingswood High School is the Lower Merion of New Jersey's suburban Philadelphia. Last Saturday they defeated Camden High in the crucial game of the early season, 7 to 6. Skeets Irvine, the coach, is a great sport and a fine leader for the teams. His track teams have won several Jersey championships, and his best broad jumper, a member of the Junior class, placed in the preliminaries for the event in the Olympics.

Penn Charter barely defeated Episcopal Academy last week in the big game of the Inter-Ac League, 7 to 6. Friends' Central swamped Chestnut Hill to win 19 to 0 for second place in the standings.

Montgomery Day School is considerably strengthened this season and has given all opponents a very busy afternoon. Ties with Friends' Central and Germantown Academy make them a much to be feared eleven.

Harvey Buck has not been punting up to his usual standard in the last two games. Halfback Robinson, of Lansdowne, outkicked him on several occasions last Saturday. This department is most important and in the coming games must be given a great deal of thought and emphasis.

There are many important games on deck this week. Of course, to local fandom the Lower Merion-Abington game is the big drawing card. We pick Abington to win this game for the first time since 1928. Not because of their superior strength, but because everything is in their favor.

We like to guess along with the other sports writers, and as we are not much worse than most of them, here comes our predictions for the games tomorrow:

Yale-Dartmouth—Dartmouth.
Vanderbilt-Georgia Tech—Vandy.
Villanova-Bucknell—Villanova.
Temple-Carnegie Tech—I'm Scotch.
Purdue-N. Y. U.—The big city.
Pitt-Notre Dame—Oh, how I hope I'm right—Pitt.

Pennsylvania-Navy—Penn.
Indiana-Princeton—Michigan.
Indiana-Miss. State—Coach E. C. Hayes, of Indiana, was former coach of Miss. State and will give his old love a severe trouncing.
Columbia-Cornell—Columbia.
Alabama-Kentucky—Alabama.

Jr. High Leopards Win 2d Victory; Play Haverford Today

Lower Merion Junior High won the second start of the season last week, a 12 to 0 victory over Darby Junior High School. Pottstown was defeated by the same score a week previous. Coach Mattis' boys go to Haverford Junior High this afternoon to take part in their first real test of the season. Haverford is strong again this year, and should win over the light team from Ardmore.

The Leopards have defeated the boys from South Ardmore for the past three years, 39 to 0, 33 to 7, and 26 to 0. This is Mattis' fourth year coaching the cubs and his success has been outstanding. Many of the Senior High leaders were former score getters for the F. & M. Collegian before donning the colors of the big Maroon team. Bob Taylor, captain of the Senior High team, captained the team at Junior High that defeated the Haverfordians, 39 to 0. Harvey Buck captained them the following year, when they won 33 to 7, and John McMahon, substitute end, captained them last year. John's younger brother, Tom McMahon, is captain this season, playing at right tackle.

Win Third Straight

The Narberth Boys' Club continued its stellar performance on the gridiron, winning its third straight game of the season by defeating Overbrook before a large crowd on the home field, 24-0.

Score by periods:

	1	2	3	4	T
Narberth	6	0	12	6	24
Overbrook	0	0	0	0	0

This Saturday the team will play the West Philadelphia Cardinals.

One-Word Error in Deed Necessitates Bill in Equity

An error of one word in the deed conveying a Narberth property in 1921 is responsible for a Bill in Equity in the Montgomery County Court. The proceedings are being brought by Robert F. and Elizabeth K. Wood, of 237 Forest avenue, Narberth, through their attorney, W. Russell Green, in order to straighten out the deed so that the title to their property may be reinsured.

Following the failure of the Merion Title and Trust Company, where the deed was insured, negotiations were begun to reinsure the deed by the Bryn Mawr Trust Company. It was then found that an error consisting of the insertion of the word "westerly" instead of "easterly" had crept into the original deed, by which William D. Smedley conveyed the property to Willis N. Mills, the first owner, on November 20, 1921.

When the property was conveyed by Mr. Mills to the Woods the error passed unnoticed and doubtless would not have come to light had not the Merion Title closed its doors.

Mr. Wood explained that the proceedings are in no sense a law suit nor does the action imply ill will towards any of the interested parties.

A hearing is expected to be held by the Court on the matter during November.

Five Maroon Backs Score on Lansdowne

Switch Late in First Half to Aerial Offense Brings First Touchdown

THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

Football at Lower Merion High School is celebrating its thirty-fourth birthday this fall, and already two of the most ancient and honorable enemies of Maroon athletic history have been vanquished without so much as a dent in the Lower Merion armor.

First came Cheltenham, a school with thirty-one years of continuous athletic friendship with the teams from Ardmore. They were met at the York Road institution's field and defeated, 26 to 0. Last week Lansdowne High School came to Pennypacker Field, enjoying the longest record of continuous football relations with the Maroon and White, next to Radnor and Cheltenham, and sustained one of the worst defeats in the history of the school, 32 to 0. Sandwiched in between these two ancient and honorable opponents was a battle with Haverford High School, played at South Ardmore, where the Maroon won, 12 to 0.

During the last decade, Lansdowne had managed to win from the local team twice, once in 1926, when they overcame Miller Brothers and others, 16 to 7, due to the good work of Fullback Bishop, and again in 1928, when Norton blocked a punt from the toe of Reds Kohlhas and scored the touchdown that spelled victory, 7 to 6.

Those were the only two years that Lansdowne had even scored upon the minions of Forstburg and Adam, while the teams of the two L. M. coaches had piled up a total of 157 points.

The game last week was a repetition of the fat years against the Borough team. Thirty-two to nothing represents the worst licking handed the neighbors, with one exception, in many, many years. Adam's first year at Lower Merion, his boys defeated the Lansdowne team 38 to 0. Iocavelli, Buck, Talley, O'Keefe and Parkinson scored touchdowns in the game Saturday, Iocavelli's being the most sensational, a 70-yard romp through the entire visiting team for a score.

The Maroon team fought valiantly all through the first half to be stopped time and again by a determined and well-drilled Lansdowne eleven. The visitors allowed the local boys to wear themselves out marching up the field and then recovered the ball in their own territory and kicked it right back down the field for the Maroon lads to bring it back again.

This got very monotonous to the Maroon quarterback, who finally decided it was time to change tactics with only a moment of the first half left unplayed. He switched to an aerial offense with the ball on the fifty-yard line, and in two long heaves, Buck to Talley, the latter went over the line for the first touchdown of the game. The Lansdowne team rushed the ball only FIVE times during the entire first half.

This style of play was a smart move on the part of Coach Horner (his first year at Lansdowne), for his boys were not equal to going a full game against the heavier and bigger squad which represents the Lower Merion colors.

During the second half the same tactics were employed, but the boys from Ardmore kept the ball in their possession most of the time, and in the Lansdowne territory all of the time.

Merion Scouts Selling Movie Tickets to Aid Needy

The Merion Boy Scout Troop, which annually provides Christmas basket of food for poor families of the Main Line, is making preparations for this year by selling tickets to the Narberth Theatre. The week of November 7th all tickets sold by the Scouts will bring a commission to the Troop, which will be used for the baskets of food.

Letters explaining the plan have been sent to residents of Merion, Narberth and Bala-Cynwyd, and soliciting the patronage of residents. The pictures during the course of the week will be "Tom Brown of Culver," "Speak Easily," and "Chandu." Last year the Merion Scouts provided baskets for 18 families.

J. Alden Tift is Scoutmaster of the Merion Troop.

As They "Swiped" Their Pumpkins for Hallowe'en

So will Jack Frost steal into your home one of these fine evenings and "swipe" every bit of your comfort unless you are well supplied with fuel to drive him away without his loot. We might add that you have no time to waste.

Your selection of fuel, however, is of vital importance. Regardless of the type of your heating plant or the type of fuel you burn, whether it be coal, oil or coke, efficient heating can only be accomplished by the consumption of good fuel.

SKELTON FUELS are repeatedly uniform. Little variation can be possible when you are supplied year after year with coal from the same mine, fuel oil from the same refinery and coke from the same ovens. This, plus the fact that the fuels we distribute are of the finest quality, go to make up an ideal fuel for Mr. Consumer.
